Fire Fighting Equipment

Fire is the most serious risk which will cause a serious damage and too expensive and will effect on the business continuity.

To avoid such risk in every personnel should have accountability and responsibility by observing things during patrols.

The type of hazard that security staff should look for are:

Blocked fire escape routes

Building up of combustible materials like cotton waste, paper / wood scrap etc,

Dangerous/ broken. Overheating, loose electrical fittings

A daily check should be made until the hazard is rectified and if considered sufficiently serious and additional report should be made to the administration / Facility Manager.

All guards will be trained on handling of fire fighting equipment / emergency procedures.

The fire alarm systems zones and responsibilities must be taught to the security personnel by the supplier and regular fire drills should also be carried out with proper evacuation plans and mock drills to be carried out.
